

ABOUT AGE-WELL

The AGE-WELL NCE (Aging Gracefully across Environments using technology to Ensure Well-being, Engagement and Long Life NCE Inc.) is a national research network in technology and aging.

Its aim is to unite partners from the research, industry, government and not-for-profit sectors towards the common goal of helping older Canadians to maintain their independence, health and quality of life through the development and delivery of innovative services and technologies.

AGE-WELL was launched in 2015 through the federally funded Networks of Centres of Excellence (NCE) program. It addresses a wide range of complex issues in technology and aging by funding research and training programs as well as promoting partnerships, mobilizing knowledge and developing commercial technologies.

AGE-WELL is funded through the NCE program from March 2015 to February 2020.

AGE-WELL's mission is to accelerate innovation in the field of technology and aging, with the goal of improving quality of life and to produce a positive economic and social impact that will benefit both Canadians and the global community.

AGE-WELL strives to:

- Conduct world-class research in the field of technologies for healthy aging
- Develop an in-depth understanding of the needs of older Canadians and their caregivers, along with the social, ethical, and policy implications of technological change
- Train and mentor students and emerging researchers in unique, applied environments and through a core focus on commercialization, clinical application and knowledge mobilization
- Foster strong networking and partnerships among academic, public, private, and community sector stakeholders
- Create capacity for Canada to establish its position as a global leader in the development of technologies for healthy aging
